

SecAware case study

ISO 27001 ISMS

•
Infosec policies

Client situation

Having been challenged by its main client, a small New Zealand technology company needed to firm-up and document its information security arrangements, on the hurry-up.

Consulting assignment

We were engaged to prepare an overarching information security policy supported by an appropriate set of topic-specific policies using ISO/IEC 27001 as a framework. We were asked to keep the policies simple and easily maintained, and to estimate the client's level of conformity based on reviewing their existing documents and discussion with management.

Outcome

Our client - and their client - were happy with a suite of ~20 pragmatic policies delivered on time. Our 3-page security management review provided assurance and fed improvements into the client's planning.

Lessons learnt

The pragmatic approach was essential given the tight timescale, the client's size and business priorities.
